Danny Tuckwood: MHRP: Learning & Development

Teams have significantly more potential than individuals to rise to current and future challenges. Yet when you put high performing individuals into a team together, the collective performance often decreases substantially. What can be done to harness the collective intelligence that exists in your teams, creating agility and enabling them to thrive and excel in this volatile, uncertain, complex, ambiguous world?

The Systemic Team Coaching Certificate programme offers a rare opportunity for executive and senior leaders, as well as experienced HR and OD professionals and executive coaches to understand how to get the best from teams in today's Volatile, Uncertain, Complex and Ambiguous world.

Developed from two years of global research into the leadership required for the future, this programme will challenge much of what you thought you knew about leading teams to success. If there is one event in 2017 that will deliver the kind of ROI you absolutely cannot afford to miss, this is it.

27-29 November 2017 in Sandton
